VOLO CHANGES HANDS.

Evacuated by the Greeks and Occupied by the Turks.

VELESTINO, May 8.—The Greeks have evacuated Volo. Detachments of marines have been landed from the British, Russian, French, Austrian and German warships off that place, to guard the town. The foreign consuls have arrived here to confer with Edem Pasha, the Turkish Commander. As this despatch is being sent the Turkish troops are entering Volo. The Greeks who fled to Almy-ros will rejoin the main body of the Greek forces at Thessalonika.

ATHENS, May 8.—The Turks, according to last night's advices, have not yet reached Volo, which is now completely evacuated by the Greek troops. The foreign legation took part in the fighting at Pharsalos. An Englishman and two Italian officers were killed.

Ricotti Garibaldi's volunteers have started for the front, marching to the railroad station shouting "Long live the social revolution!" These cries were resented by the spectators.

ATHENS, May 8.—A despatch from Ar-says that Fand Bey, the Turkish commander, has issued a proclamation to the Christian population, ordering them to lay down their arms, otherwise their villages will be burned.
The environs of Kanja, in Turkish territory, are burning.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The Turkish legation has received the following despatch from Constantinople: Edem Pasha telegraphs that after a very serious battle with a considerable Hellenic force, concentrated at Velestino, the enemy were completely put to rout and the city was occupied by the imperial army. All the strategic points surrounding Pilawtepe, situated on the route of Volo, have been occupied and the victorious army advances toward Volo.

This advance to Volo is regarded as the legation in Washington as the most important and decisive movement since the war began.
It is pointed out that the rest of it leaves the Greek army cut in two, with General Smolen-ski's army out of the island and unable to communicate with the Greek army under Prince Constantine. The Turkish forces now occupy a line extending from Miloussa pass southward to Volo. General Smolenka's army is east of this line, with a Turkish army between him and Athens.

THE PEDDLER NUISANCE.
House peddlers are a nuisance at all seasons, but the advent of spring brings them out in greater force than ever, and in the average small household, in which the mistress must be maid of all work, she is kept half the time running to the door to reiterate in the ears of peripatetic peddlers that she doesn't want any pencils, shoe strings, corn salve, buttons, pins, can openers, door rugs, brooms, bananas, or orange, strawberries and a thousand other things that she prefers to purchase at the stores or markets. The nuisance is provoking enough in households where servants are kept to answer the door-bell and send the peddlers packing; in the humbler households it is unbearable.

It is easier to complain of the peddler nuisance than to abolish it, for the peddlers are licensed by the authorities, and they are an industrious and persistent lot. They assume that they have a right to ring as many door-bells as they please, as often as they please, and they fully live up to the assumption. No amount of cold shoulder or curt refusal discourage them. They ring door-bells with a plodding, persistent patience which might lead to the supposition that they were performing a religious duty, but which, in fact, is prompted by the hope of gain. With the motive there can be no quarrel, for everyone is entitled to pursue some calling for a living, but along suffering, nerve-jarred community would be glad of some measure of relief from the im-portunities of peddlers, of whom they want to purchase nothing.

The nuisance is one which afflicts all cities, or all American cities at least, and various legal methods have been tried to restrict it within endurable limits. In some cities ordinances have been passed prohibiting peddlers, under penalty of fine, from applying at private houses from which a sign "No peddlers wanted" is displayed. The trouble with this plan is that some people may dislike to hang out such signs upon their outer walls, while others who have no prejudices on this score will neglect to put out the sign until some persistent vendor of small wares has called them to the door and reminded them of their forgetfulness. But in some way the old-fashioned notion that every man's house is his castle should be made good in law to the extent of relieving him and his from the importunities of vendors who are intent on selling things the master or mistress doesn't want. —[Philadelphia Times.]

EGGS PRESERVED BY ELECTRICITY.

A New York electrician has discovered a method for preserving eggs in an edible condition for a number of years. The only successful method now is to soak the eggs in lime water, which closes up the pores of the shells and kills any germs which may be attached to them. Under the most favorable condition, however, this method will not preserve an egg for more than three months. The new method is much more complicated. It is well known that an eggshell is more or less porous, and that air passes into the egg and hastens its decay. In preserving eggs by the new method the egg is first placed in a vacuum chamber, which draws the air from the interior. The eggs are then packed in a compact box which renders them air-tight. After position will be placed in barrels of water and subjected to an electric current strong enough to destroy any germ life which may be present. —[New York Journal.]

MAYOR GLEASON AGAIN.

Application for a Warrant for His Arrest by His Defeated Rival.

NEW YORK, May 8.—At 10 o'clock this morning John P. Madden of Long Island City appeared in police court and applied for a warrant for the arrest of Mayor Patrick J.
Gleason. This action was the result of disturbance at the meeting of the Long Island common council last night, at which such epithets as "Liar," "Cur" and "Tool" were followed by blows that left Mayor Gleason with a cut cheek which the mayor credits to Mr.
Madden, and caused the latter to ascribe to Madden's eye and discolored face to the mayor and his numerous friends. Mr. Madden is Mr. Gleason's defeated rival for the mayoralty, and leads the Jefferson Democrats. The row arose over Mayor Gleason's openly accusing Mr. Charles Park of the Astoria Presbyterian Church of preventing a boxing match several months ago because a man sent to the manager of the proposed contest was refused a certain stipend which the mayor said was to go to the minister. No warrant has been issued for the mayor, but it is said he will be subpoenaed to appear on Tuesday before Judge Ingram.

Probably Fell Down the Shaft.

WESTERLY, May 8.—The body of Captain Charles A. Hall of this city was found at the bottom of Old Quarry hole at the Rhode Island granite works this morning, a distance of one hundred and fifty feet below the surface of the ground. Medical Examiner Morgan decided that he had been killed about four hours. The family of General Manager (Gardner) report hearing a sharp cry about 6 o'clock this morning. There is no clue to the manner of his death, beyond the supposition of a fall from the top of the shaft.

Mr. Bayard Honored at Southampton.

SOUTHAMPTON, May 8.—On arriving at Southampton today on his way to New York, Mr. Thomas F. Bayard was received by the mayor and a deputation from the chamber of commerce of Southampton. The retiring United States ambassador was presented with an eulogistic address, and Mr. Bayard responded briefly.

RHODE ISLAND QUARTERLY MEETING.

Thursday was the day for the Rhode Island Quarterly Meeting of Friends at East Greenwich, at which there was about the usual attendance. The first meeting was held Wednesday afternoon, on military and oversight, and a Christian Endeavor conference was held in the evening, at which reports from the auxiliaries were read. Thursday there was a meeting for worship at 10.30 a. m. and in the afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, was held the usual business session. Reports were read and statistics showed a membership for this Quarterly Meeting of 903, a slight increase over last year. The meeting house at Authony, long closed, was reported to be reopened for services on each Sabbath.

Samuel R. Buffington, clerk for twenty years, tendered his resignation, and Thomas J. Batty of the Friends' School was chosen as his successor.

The following delegates were elected to attend the Yearly Meeting June 10 at Portland: Me. Charles W. Earle, Robert P. Gifford, James M. Estes, Joseph H. Atwater, Isaac B. Macomber, Augustus Jones, Esther Chase, F. Narcissa Beale, Phoebe S.
Ardeholt, Susan Peckham, Catharine Greene, Phoebe R. Gifford, Moses L. Buffington, Frank E. Jones, Gulelma Freeborn, Lucile E. Jones, Anna Tucker, Sarah J. Hanson, Esie Estes, Charles A. Chase.

FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Rev. Dr. T. C. McKillop has accepted the invitation of the Memorial Day committee to be orator, and Rev. H. G. Boardman will be chaplain of the day. The exercises will be changed somewhat from the usual order, the services being held at 2 o'clock, and the parade taking place later. It is expected that the line of march will be made shorter than in former years.
The Grand Army men will meet in their post halls at 1 o'clock, and at 1.30 will be escorted by the Newport band to the place where the exercises are to be held. At 3 o'clock the procession will form and proceed to the cemetery, where the memorial service will be held in the soldiers' lot.

Three hundred and fifty baskets have been called for by the different schools, and additional baskets have been ordered by the committee.

Comrades living in Jamestown, Middletown and Portsmouth are detailed to decorate graves in those towns, and it is hoped by the committee that the people will take an interest in the exercises, and that all veterans, whether belonging to the Grand Army or not,
will assist in the work.

Harper's Weekly for May 15 will contain an article on the bi-centennial of Trinity Church, New York city, with a drawing by A. I. Keller of the interior of the church on the occasion of the special services in celebration of the event, and with a portrait of the pastor, Dr. Morgan Dix. The Centennial Exposition in Nashville, Tenn., will be described and illustrated, and an article will be devoted to the big trees of California, with a plan for their preservation.

HITCHCOCK HURT.

Bad Accident to One of the Most Popular Among the Polo Players.

The polo season on Long Island opened yesterday with an exciting contest between the Meadowbrook and the Rockaway Hunt Clubs. The day was marked by a very painful, and it may be a serious, accident to Mr. Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., one of the players in the fourth period.

Mr. Hitchcock was carrying the ball toward Meadowbrook's goal at a rattling gait. He was about twenty feet in front of the field. The remainder of the players, were all riding hard, endeavoring to catch up with him. George Eustis of the Meadowbrooks, who was playing the position of back, was nearest to him.

Mr. Hitchcock pulled his pony down a trifle, in order to get a good side swing at the ball, and, before he could get him well under way again, Mr. Eustis, who was unable to check his pony's speed, ran into him.

Mr. Hitchcock's pony was knocked off his feet, and rolled over on his side, with Mr. Hitchcock underneath. His foot was caught in the stirrup, and he was unable to move. His pony instantly commenced kicking, and struck Mr. Hitchcock several times about the legs and body.

Several of the players jumped off their ponies and ran to Mr. Hitchcock's assistance. The pony was held down, and Mr. Hitchcock was dragged from underneath him. Mr. Hitchcock was placed on a blanket and then put into a carriage and taken to the Meadowbrook clubhouse.

Dr. Valentine Mott of Roslyn was among the spectators, and gave Mr. Hitchcock immediate attention. Upon examination it was found that Mr. Hitchcock had received a very bad dislocation of the left hip, and had also received several concussions about the body and limbs. His condition, however, it is said, is not serious.

The team were as follows: Meadowbrook—Stanley Mortimer, Harry P. Whitney, Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., George P. Eustis.

Rockaway—P. D. Savage, P. C. Conover, W. Anson, R. C. Francke.
Play was stopped after the accident to Mr. Hitchcock, the score being: Meadow-brook, 9; Rockaway, 4. Mr. Hitchcock had made seven goals. Mr. Mortimer one, and Mr. Whitney one for the Meadowbrook; and Mr. Conover three for the Rockaways.

This Morning's News.

STILL THERE IS DELAY.

While the Powers Hesitate the Greek Royal Family is in Peril.

ATHENS, May 7.—The intervention communications from the powers have not yet been received.

The Greek government has notified the powers that the Greek fleet has established an effective blockade of the coast of Epirus.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 7.—Orders have been telegraphed to Edhem Pasha to push on to Demokos immediately.

PARIS, May 7.—A despatch from Larissa, received here by an Ottoman official, says that Edhem Pasha, with his staff, started for Velostino this morning.

ATHENS, May 7.—The Greek fleet at Volo has been instructed not to hinder the entrance of the Turks, in order to save the town from destruction.

VOLO, May 7.—The consuls have decided to ask the foreign warships to land detachments, and have promised to protect the town.

BERLIN, May 7.—The Lokal Anzeiger says the king of Greece has formally asked the mediation of the emperor of Russia.

ATHENS, May 7.—It is stated positively that if the powers insist on the withdrawal of the Greek troops from Crete as a condition of mediation, Greece will reply that she prefers war even to extermination.

LONDON, May 8.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily Mail says: Private news from Athens which has escaped censorship shows the position of royalty there to be more perilous than ever. The members of the royal family rarely leave the palace, and their portraits have been withdrawn from public view. When the queen and princesses visit the hospitals they are openly insulted in the streets. The palace is watched by revolutionary agents lest their majesties should attempt to flee the country. It is said that Turkey is really the chief hindrance to the powers proposing mediation, as the Porte claims the right to finish the war in the ordinary way.

LONDON, May 8.—A despatch to the Daily Chronicle from Athens says: Colonel Menas, who arrived from Arta that the Turks have begun a wholesale massacre of the inhabitants in the interior of Epirus. Almost all the inhabitants of the village of Kalamaria have been murdered, a few only escaping to the mountains. From other parts women are arriving at Arta in the most miserable condition, begging protection for their husbands and children, who are being murdered by the enraged Turkish troops. Many of these poor creatures have gone mad. Some are unable to articulate a single word, others relate unspeakable atrocities. The blockade of the coast of Epirus will begin at 6 o'clock Saturday morning (today). Both Greek squadrons have been ordered there for that purpose.

M'KINLEY MISREPRESENTED.
Has Not Expressed Approval of Senate Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—There was published this afternoon a statement that the President had gone over the tariff bill with Senators Allison, Aldrich and Hanna and had expressed his approval of the Senate bill in so far as it makes reductions in the House schedules and promises a larger revenue. He was also represented as not extending his approval to the entire bill, but he was reported as approving the reduction of the whiskey tax, while he doubted the wisdom, politically, of the increased beer tax.

It is stated at the White House that the President did not have the consultation referred to and that the attribution to him of the opinion expressed was not justified, as the President had not expressed the opinion.

The paragraph thus credited closed with a reference to Senator Hanna as having said that the political difficulties to come from the imposition of the beer tax had been exaggerated. This will pain the new Senator, who has some fourteen breweries in his home district, and out in the country must meet the silver Republicans, who have been insisting upon the highest duties on wools of the first and second class. As the beer tax has been increased, and wool has not received the protection that Mr. Hanna gave the Ohio wool growers, Mr. Hanna is not likely to speak of the dangers to the Republicans of his state as exaggerated.

BAYARD BANQUETTED.

Americans in London Say Farewell to the Ambassador.

LONDON, May 7.—The farewell banquet given this evening by the American Society in London to Mr. Bayard, former ambassador of the United States, was attended by two hundred and seventy guests. The company included Ambassador Hay, Mrs. Hay and all the members of the American embassy, the lord bishop of London, Dr. Bright, Baron Russell of Killowen, the lord chief justice, Sir Francis and Lady Jeune, Sir Edwin Arnold, Sir Henry Thompson, Lady Randolph Churchill, Lady Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Vivian and Miss Genevieve Ward, the actress.

Mr. Bayard had a cordial reception. He brought with him the log of the Mayflower. He took Mrs. Hay in to dinner, Ambassador Hay taking in Lady Jeune.

The lord bishop of London, in a felicitous speech, proposed the health of the President of the United States. New-town Crane toasted the guest of the evening.

During the presentation of the loving cup, which is in the form of a pumpkin, surrounded by a bust of Mr. Bayard, Mr. and Mrs. Bayard were visibly affected.

Mr. Bayard, on rising to respond to Mr. Crane's sentiments, was greeted with a storm of applause. He spoke for an hour, slowly and impressively. Mr. Bayard insisted eloquently that there was no cause for quarrel between the two nations.

Baron Russell, in proposing the health of Ambassador Hay, said: "The United States have sent us their best man to represent them, and we have no doubt that the chain will be continued unbroken."

Colonel Hay, responding, said: "It would be not inappropriate to call Mr. Bayard not so much ambassador to England as ambassador to the English. I join you in wishing him and his family godspeed."

Matthews of Indiana a Candidate for the Senate.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 7.—Ex-Governor Matthews has authorized the announcement that he is a candidate for United States Senator to succeed David Purple, whose term will expire a year from next January.

"I do not care to have my candidacy paraded at this time," said the ex-governor today, "but I have an ambition to go to the Senate, and shall be a candidate in the event that the Democrats have a majority on joint ballot in the next legislature."

There is a scheme to make a clear field for the ex-governor, Senator Purple, has not yet consented to stay out of the race, but his friends believe he will consent.

Call Out of the Race.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 7.—Call was withdrawn in the race for United States Senator today, and J. N. C. Stockton, a Jacksonville banker and supporter of Call, was placed in nomination. The result of the ballot today was: Chipley, 37; Stockton, 33; Raney, 20.

A COZY COTTAGE.

Comfortable and Desirable Home Which Can be Built for $3,300.

[Copyright, 1897, by George Waller, 32 Park place, New York.]

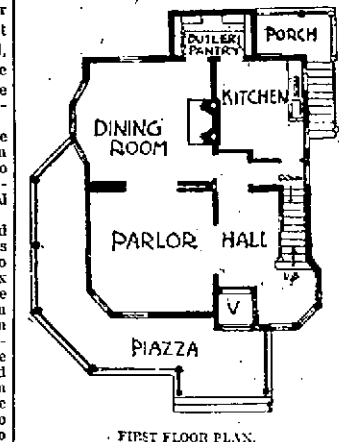

Every man is entitled to the best home his means, energy and ability will give him. The man who lives in a tenement and thinks he cannot do any better is to be pitied, and if it is his choice forever to work for the benefit of a landlord I suppose it is his business and no one ought to find fault with him. But I hold it is every man's duty to try to better himself, and if he has not ambition enough for this it is a bad omen for his family. The man who is honest and pays rent can own his home, and if $10 a month is his rent bill that same $10 would mean he could own a $1,000 home. Now, there are plenty of places where lots can be had for $350 each, and a house for $520 more would give any man a better home than he can hire for $10 per month. This applies to any size home. The proportion is the same in the payments. The main thing to look out for in a transaction of this kind is not to go in too deep—that is, don't borrow more than you can pay back. If you do, you will be swamped, and a failure is a hard thing to get over or for your friends to forget. When I see a case of this kind—and I have seen a few, I am sorry to say—I feel like giving away some good advice. And yet it is sometimes better to have tried and failed than not to have tried at all, and if all would try there would be many more homes owned by those who live in flats.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

This design shows a good, sensible, everyday home, well adapted to the wants of the clerk, the mechanic or the business man of small means. It is a simple plan, roomy, neat and in every way more generally fitted to the needs of a large number of people than most any plan that could be devised. The front is 27 feet and the depth 30 feet over all, not including the veranda. There is space for two finished rooms in the attic. The cellar is 7 feet deep, the first story 9 feet and the second 8 feet high in the clear. The finish is express. There is a nice fireplace, and there are mantels, a furnace, a range and good plumbing.

What we inherit

We are not to blame for. We cannot be held responsible for the dispositions and tendencies which we derive from our ancestors, nor are we responsible for the germs of disease which may manifest themselves in our blood as a heritage from former generations. But we are responsible if we allow these germs to develop into serious diseases which will impair our usefulness and destroy our happiness. We are responsible if we transmit to our descendants the disease germs which it is possible for us to eradicate by the use of Hays' Sanguinaria, the true blood purifier. This medicine has power to cleanse the red blood and establish perfect health in place of let me say that the last item of management means from 10 to 20 per cent. saving for some one, and I have seen houses put up by parties who never built before at prices far less than they could be contracted for, and this simply because they were good, ordinary business people and had energy and ability to go into the details and make a saving whenever they could. This ought to be the study of every one who builds and is in a measure possible with all.

HUMMING BIRDS AT SEA.

Two sailing vessels have recently reached the Pacific coast with stories about encountering flocks of humming birds while far out at sea. A deep-water captain now at Portland, Oregon, says this is no uncommon experience. He may be quite truthful in the assertion, but it is a pity that in bolstering up the yards of his brother captain he was moved to explain the phenomenon by saying that "humming birds, in returning to the coast from their winter migration to Asia, often get tired, and come aboard ships to rest." If this is so, all the bird books are wrong, for according to them the Trichodidae find the stretch of country between British Columbia and Patagonia quite large enough, and, like the good Americans they are, do all their searching for a change of scene and climate within the limits of the New World. This makes one leave a sigh at the probable ultimate fate of a man who, like this same captain, says that once his ship, when half way between Tahiti and San Francisco, "was literally smothered under a vast cloud of humming birds which settled down on it in an exhausted condition, and covered everything so that the men could not walk the deck, or pull a rope without killing lots of them. The sailors made potpies of them till they were tired of such fare, and they saved enough of the feathers to make feather beds for all on board. One of the men saved enough of the red patches under the throat of the birds to make him a waistcoat, which, when he reached England, he sold to the British Museum for a large sum." Such stories as that will excite the savage jealousy and just resentment of fishermen, for they are a clear infringement upon ancient franchise which should be as much of a monopoly is Oregon as elsewhere.

Petitions are circulating in Austria to request the government to stop the wholesale slaughter of birds, useful and ornamental. In the market-places yard-high piles of these poor creatures are sold daily, and, unless the government interferes, none will be left to kill in a few years.

WORKS WELL.

Newport Officials Pleased with the Engine Cremator.

Yesterday Aldermen Tanner, Hammett and O'Neill, the sub-committee of the board of aldermen, accompanied by ex-Mayor Robert S. Franklin, secretary of the board of health, and Executive Officer George C. Shaw, went to Lowell to inspect the engine garbage cremator in operation there. The party arrived in Lowell shortly after 10 o'clock, and going at once to the City Hall was met by Executive Agent Knapp of the board of health of that city, who made immediate arrangements to take the visitors to the cremator, calling upon two members of the board to meet the party there. The Newporters were given every opportunity to make the most thorough examination of the processes employed in the disposal of the house offal of the city, Mr. Knapp and the members of the board answering all questions and explaining every feature of the plant.

The cremator is not a very attractive building, but in its five years of existence has very effectively disposed of half the house offal and all the market and shop refuse of the city, without offense, and at a very reasonable cost. The cremator is about fifty feet long, built of ordinary bricks in part, and of specially-prepared fire clay, it is enclosed in a frame sheathed with corrugated iron. The cars in which the waste is collected dump their contents upon an iron incline, perforated to allow a portion of the water to drain off. From this incline the waste is put into one of the five retorts forming the cremator. These furnaces are closed except when the waste is being put in them, and the incline is thoroughly washed and deodorized, so that there is not the least possible odor, even within the building where the refuse is being burned—in fact, when the party arrived at the building, although a large quantity had just been put in the retorts, there was scarcely any odor, and none that was at all noticeable except directly over and very close to the retorts.

The furnace has two fires, one at each end. The larger of the two is nearest the flue, but not directly connected with it. Its flames pass over the mass of matter which rests upon the upper of two systems of grates, and thence beneath these and above a second series, which has caught any material that has fallen through the upper grates. By this method the mass of material is exposed to a fire below and above, and the material as it is dried adds fuel to the flames which pass beneath, and assists in the burning of the lower strata of the matter above the upper grates. The second fire is at the opposite end of the cremator, and its flames are serviceable in the consumption of the gases, so that when the smoke reaches the air through the mouth of the very tall chimney there is no smell, and in fact nothing that can give offense.

The offal is consumed, leaving only a very little deposit, which has no odor, large quantities of it being piled near the building and giving no offensive smell. No attempt is made to dispose of this ash for commercial purposes, although some of it has been sold. This process differs materially from the reduction systems in use in other cities, where an attempt is made to produce fertilizers of a commercial value, to the profit of the city. The idea in the Lowell cremator is to consume the refuse, and this is apparently thoroughly successful, if one can judge from the inspection. Lowell is the only New England city in which this process is in vogue, but there are several cremators in successful operation in New York city, and that, two, in thickly settled centres of population, and without offence.

The Lowell authorities are satisfied with the workings of their apparatus, and yet are confident minor changes which are proposed by the makers and others will make the cremator still more effective, and probably take away every possibility of offence. The visitors found it difficult to see where there could be any material improvement in the latter respect.

Lowell does not dispose of all its refuse by cremation, but licenses twenty-five farmers, who live in the outskirts of the city and in the adjoining country, to collect the refuse from the hotels and boarding houses, and the remainder, which is estimated at about one-half of the entire amount, is collected by the employees of the board of health and taken to the cremator. The marketmen, grocers and fishermen are compelled by law to take their own refuse to the cremator before it becomes a nuisance. The cremator is conducted by the city, and, during the five years of its operation, at a steadily decreasing cost. In 1894 the lowest week's cost per ton was $1.02; in 1895, $1.01; in 1896, 68 cents. The largest week's work in 1896 was that beginning Monday, July 6, when 116 tons of waste and market refuse were consumed at a total cost of $82.80. The cost is made up as follows: Seven tons of soft coal at $1.50; five tons of hard coal at $1.65; $23.25; labor of two men, $2 and $2.25, $27.75. The cost of burning the garbage at the cremator for 1896 was $3,343, a saving of $319.19. The consumption for the year was 2,510 tons of waste and market refuse, 455 mattresses, 218 bundles of rags, 155 dogs, 1 calf, 5 hens, 10 lambs and 31 cats.

After the inspection the Newporters were entertained at dinner by the members of the board of health, and left Lowell early in the afternoon, not only well satisfied with their trip, but confident that they had learned something which will be of benefit to the city of Newport in the solution of the problem as to how it is best to dispose of its house refuse.

HUMAN DEVELOPMENT'S HIGHEST TYPE.

A Charitable People.

Really large fortunes are almost as unknown in Athens as the squalid poverty of our large towns, and much is done by the Athenians themselves to lessen the differences of condition by their unwearying tutions in the countries from which immigrants come would show that in almost no case, that of Russia and Poland alone excepted, are the elements of representative government wholly unknown to the common people. In most of these countries some form of popular government has, either wholly or partially, gained a footing, with the inevitable result of accustoming people more or less to representative institutions. Yet the short time that this has been the case in many of the countries which pour half or over of the total flood of immigration into the United States, and the long centuries of despotism which preceded this partial and recent enlightenment, make it painfully evident that there can be, in the large part of our immigrants, little knowledge of the republican form of government, and little inherited aptitude for such government. It would at first seem as if the results of such immigration must be disastrous to our country.

And yet the situation is not so hopeless. There is nothing mysterious, or even very complicated, about republican institutions. A little time, a little study, a little experience with the practical workings of elections, is sufficient to convey to any person of ordinary intelligence as much familiarity with these matters as is necessary for the intelligent appreciation of their objects and purposes. Nor is the material out of which the prospective citizen is to be made wholly unfit for the purpose. To be sure, the Latin races, the Slavs, Hungarians, Poles, and others, have no inherited aptitude, nor, if we may judge from the history of the races, any inherent capacity for self-government and free institutions, but, as I have before said, in almost every case they have had in their own country a partial training in the forms of representative government. All that is needed is to amalgamate this heterogeneous mass, to fuse its elements in the heat and glow of our national life, until, formed in the mold of every day experience, each one shall possess the characteristic features of what we believe to be the highest type of human development which the world has seen, the American citizen.—Simon Greenleaf Crosswell, in North American Review.

PRETTY AND SIMPLE.

A pretty model for either extra waists or the waist of an entire costume is depicted in the accompanying design. The all-prevailing tuck is much in evidence. Three other stylish features are the wrinkled sleeves, the contrasting yoke and the opening at the left side finished with a ruffle.

The model is of gray cashmere, worn with a plain skirt of bell shape. The back of the waist is seamless, with a few gathers at the top of the deep belt, where it bulges slightly. The yoke at the top of the front is of white lace over yellow chiffon, finished with a ruffle of lace at the sides and back. Two groups of five tucks run vertically in the front of the bodice, the opening being a few inches to the left and finished with a rill of lace and two rosettes of black satin ribbon. The top of the bodice is edged with black braid. A black satin belt is worn. The sleeves are wrinkled, with three tucks at the top, headed by a puff.

LONELINESS.

As lonely fisher's wife scans o'er the angry sea With bated breath, and gazes eagerly To catch a glimpse of him she loves so tenderly, 'Tis thus I watch for thee.

As mother craves to see the son she bore, Who roams afar upon a foreign shore,
And yearns to clasp him in her arms once more,

So craves my heart for thee.
As lovers, distant long to meet and press Each other's lips, in hours of loneliness;
To touch the hand which thrills with happiness.

I long, dear love, for thee.

As one who tosses on a couch of pain Sighing for day, and then for night again, Seeking respite, though it be in vain,
'I seek, in vain, for thee.

As one who grieves o'er unrequited love Seeks it with rest, though mourning as Love,
And fails not, though heaven and earth Should move.

I grieve, dear heart, for thee.

And yet, I know that thou art happy now, So to this will, who ereth not, I bow;
I'll seek his pardon, pay to him my vow, Until I come to thee.

—[Jennie E. Wilson-Howell, in Boston Transcript.]

NEWPORT SPEAKS,

And in No Uncertain Tones.—People Mean What They Say.

A great work is going on in Newport. Quietly, steadily and successfully a powerful force is exerting itself for the good of the people.

When it was announced that the great medicine, California Catarrh Cure, which is, without question, the greatest remedy for catarrhal troubles ever compounded, was to be offered to Newport, the number of people who turned out and admitted themselves victims of this obstinate and hitherto incurable disease, was astonishing. They came in scores, and unabatingly announced that they suffered, and had for years hopelessly suffered, from hawking, hronching, bad breath, slime in the throat, dropping of offensive matter from the throat, headache, gurgling, choking, nausea, stuffed feeling and increasing deafness. They had catarrh in every form, from the acute attacks that can be cured in a week to the worst cases of chronic catarrh, the most persistent disease in the world, that yields to nothing but California Catarrh Cure.

Already its wonderful cures are the talk of Newport.

Mr. Perry G. Case, 22 Ayrault street, says: "My wife has suffered much with severe headaches caused by catarrh; her throat also was badly affected, and matter from the head dropping into it caused much raising. I got a bottle of California Catarrh Cure at the Old Pharmacy, on Thames street, and the results of using it have been very satisfactory. It has greatly relieved her headaches, and prevents so much of the annoying dropping of matter into the throat. My boy has also used California Catarrh Cure, and has much helped. I think it is a fine article."

The words are from your own townsman, California Catarrh Cure is for you, too. In case of colds it is invaluable, as it helps in breaking them up, and entirely prevents a cold "hanging on," as well as attacks of acute catarrh which so often follow a severe cold in the head. All Dealers; 50 cents; three times as much, $1.

WANTS A READY-MADE NAVY.

Now that the Turks have whipped the Greeks into line, they are disposed to demand payment for the service rendered.
And as the powers have given notice that no territorial acquisitions will be permitted, and little Greece has no money to spare, the sultan and his advisers have indicated a willingness to accept the whole or a part of the Greek navy, instead of insisting upon the cash. Turkey has felt the want of ships of war during the last few months, and evidently thinks it easier to buy without money and without price of their prostrate neighbors than to arise and build. Besides, the sultan can see no reason why the Greeks have need of a navy, or even an army, in these days, when all things are arranged for them by the great powers of Europe.

As the war was brought on by Turkish cruelties and outrages, there does not seem to be any good reason why that nation, though successful in the conflict of arms, is entitled to indemnity for the expenses of the campaign at all. On the other hand, there are many reasons why it is not for the interest of the powers, any more than of Greece itself, to increase the sultan's strength by assisting him to acquire additional ships of war.

MAKING AN ISSUE.

What the Democrats have been wanting ever since the November election has been an issue over which they can rally their divided forces and proceed anew to battle.
The Republicans now seem disposed to accommodate them to their hearts' content. Representative Wheeler of Alabama, who has been in Congress for many years, gets into the marrow of the present political situation when he declares that "the Republicans are now making an issue upon which all the elements of the Democracy can unite." He adds: "That issue is, of course, the tariff; we won on that issue in 1892, and we can win on it again."

This confidence may be largely the fruit of desire, and possibly is entirely misplaced. But Representative Wheeler is one of the most intelligent of the Southern leaders, and his intelligence is of an eminently practical order. He well understands that the Democracy cannot make another battle on free silver, as not one-half the Democrats who supported Bryan for President believe in establishing our financial system on a silver basis. They know that free silver, under present conditions, would mean silver monetarism, and would thus make the great republic of the world serve its financial relations from "all civilized nations of the earth, and relegate itself to the rear."

The Republicans, after the election of McKinley, had it in their power, to all human appearances, to hold control of affairs for a long term of years. Had they proceeded to the establishment of a moderate tariff such as they had promised in order to win Democratic support for Mc-Kinley, they would have held a large portion of the so-called gold Democrats, and rendered the free silver wing of the party powerless, for want of an issue on which their opponents could agree. But with the present tariff as an issue there will be a united Democracy to confront. Says the Philadelphia Times, one of the most careful observers of the political horizon:
"Representative Wheeler is quite right in declaring that the Republicans are now making an issue upon which all the elements of the Democracy can unite." It seems certain that they will present the tariff to the people in such offensive form as will make the question of monopoly taxes the supreme issue before the people, and thus subordinate, or substantially ef-face from the contest, the degradation of our currency and every form of assault upon public and private credit. It is the only issue that could reunite the various elements of opposition to the Republican party; and whenever that issue shall be distinctly presented by the final enactment of offensive tariff laws, imposing increased taxes upon the necessities of life without any prospect of increased wages to labor, the tariff must become paramount and the silver issue practically abandoned, and Democratic supremacy in the national government again be more than possible, solely by the misuse of Republican power.

It is only needful to recall the fact that the Republicans won at the last election by the help of the round money Democrats, to see the peril which is distinctly invited by affording their natural opponents an issue over which free silver heresies will for the time being be laid aside, and a rallying cry afforded which will be almost certain to sweep the country against themselves. Instead of going to extremes, as in the present bill, the Republican leaders made very conservative tariff revision, confining the policy of protection of American labor and eliminating all monopoly features from the new revenue bill. Such a tariff law would disarm the Democrats and leave them without the financial issue, that would convulse them from centre to circumfer-ence. This is the great opportunity of the Republican leaders to maintain Republican power; but had they been specifically charged with the task of furnishing an issue to reunite the Democrats of this country and conservative voters of every faith who believe in honest taxation, they could not have performed their task with greater fidelity than has been done in framing the Dingley tariff bill. And it is not determined whether the Senate has made the measure passed by the House better or worse.

Not many years since a young man in this city wrote a poem for the Daily News and sent it to a friend, with the request that he look it over and mark such changes in it as he thought were advisable. In due time the manuscript was returned to the writer, who, after a careful inspection, declared that not a single line had been permitted to remain as at first written. The author, who felt himself to be a real poet and entitled to some consideration, was not only astonished but highly indignant. It is barely possible that Congressman Dingley had something of the same feeling when Messrs. Aldrich & Co. returned to him the tariff bill which he had prepared with so much painstaking, and of which he was so proud. A thousand amendments to the Dingley poem left small traces of the original authorship, and it is no wonder that the Maine Congressman is disgusted.

The Fall River Globe, in speaking of matters in its city, says: "Those multitude of stamps of what a few days ago were Landscape and wide-spreading shade trees are mute and inglorious witnesses to the idea which some of our city authorities have of observing the spirit of Arbor Day.
And to think that this desecration should have occurred on the public library lot, too, where, if any place, the sentiment of that day should be exemplified." That public library grounds are not exempt from such disasters is shown by the fact that the beautiful fern-leaved beech at Redwood has been greatly injured by permitting a man to get among its branches for the purpose of trimming out its top.
From that hour its especial beauty has been a thing of the past.

The Greeks have been utterly routed by the Turks. They have in no instance shown themselves good fighters, on land or sea. They had plenty of warships, and on water at least were masters of the situation. From the first they talked loudly, but when it came to fighting their courage oozed out and they were found not equal to the occasion. The Greeks may be great in other directions, and far superior to the Turks, as we believe they are, but their military renown is all in the past.
They should now study the arts of peace and leave bloody war to the more brutal forces.

The Springfield Republican calls attention to the fact that it took forty-four days to get the McKinley bill through the Senate, and ninety-three days to pass the Wilson bill. Then the McKinley bill was lodged in conference committee three weeks more, and the Wilson bill six weeks.

This makes up an average rate of progress which would promise the enactment of the present tariff bill some time in September.

The rebels in Honduras have been badly defeated, and the rebellion itself effectually put down. This is good news to all friends of established governments, and helps decide the question of the fitness of the Central and South American peoples for self-control in matters of this kind.

Young Mayor Harrison of Chicago, who was held up before the election as a "boodler of the first water," is likely to disap-point the expectations of his enemies. He has issued an order that all applications for office must be lodged with the civil service commissioners.

It is said that a good many of the gold Democrats among the Germans of the West who voted for McKinley think it a poor return that one of the first acts of his administration should look to an additional tax of nearly fifty per cent on beer.

As is apparent, it requires a long time to have a tariff bill fixed just right. It must be made satisfactory to the Senate, the House and the Sugar Trust before it can be fully accepted.

The American Grocer says: "We paid last year $1,000,126,360 for drinks." The editorial force on that paper must be very large, to make the drink bill reach figures like these.

Ex-Governor Campbell says that "Bryan could be elected President right now." It is to be hoped, however, that it will not be done. Give McKinley a chance.

CABS WITHOUT HORSES.

The day of the motor car as a practical factor in locomotive traffic has arrived, and the long-suffering cab horse will soon have outlived its day of usefulness. In Europe the recognition of the utility of the motor car has been prompt and thorough, while Americans have, until recently, taken up the new vehicle only in a half-hearted way. But the vogue has at last reached this country, and one of the indications of its presence is the establishment of a regular automobile cab service in New York. Ten handsome cars are in operation, while a coupe and a survey are in course of construction. The hansom, which are much like the ordinary cabs, are painted the conventional blacks, dark blues and greens. They are supplied with two motors of one and one-half horse power each. Under the extension at the rear, on which the operator sits, are placed the batteries which energetic the motor. The operation of the vehicle is very simple, and can be mastered in a few minutes. Its speed within the city is from six to ten miles, but it can be run up to fifteen miles an hour if necessary. It is estimated that twenty-five miles can be covered without recharging the batteries. The vehicle costs very little more than a horse and ordinary cab.

It is most comfortable to ride in, as it has four wheels, which are fitted with large pneumatic tires. The cabs have been in constant demand, and it is believed that, sooner or later, every stable will be compelled to purchase vehicles of this description. In Europe, where many motor carriages are worked by petroleum spirit, as well as electricity, it has been suggested that, in view of the large demand for such vehicles by private owners, the builders of the cars should provide their clients for a small sum, with reduced models of the same, so arranged that they can be quickly taken to pieces, so as to give their owners an intelligent idea of the working details.

PUZZLING THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

The proceedings of the Royal Society of London were not taken so seriously a hundred and fifty years ago as they are now.
A sailor who had broken his leg was advised to send to the Royal Society an account of the remarkable manner in which he had healed the fracture. He did so.
His story was that, having fractured his leg by falling from the top of a mast, he had dressed it with nothing but tar and oakum, which had proved so wonderfully effective that in three days he was able to walk just as well as before the accident. This remarkable story naturally caused some excitement among members of the society. No one had previously suspected tar and oakum of possessing such miraculous healing powers. The society wrote for further particulars, and doubted, indeed, whether the leg had been really fractured. The truth of this part of the story, however, was proved beyond the shadow of a doubt. Several letters passed between the Royal Society and the humble sailor, who continued to assert most solemnly that his broken leg had been treated with tar and oakum, and with these two applications only. The society might have remained puzzled for an indefinite period had not the honest sailor remarked in a postscript to his last letter:
"I forgot to tell your honors that the leg was a wooden one."—[Harper's Round Table.]

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 8, 8 A. M. For New England—Fair tonight and Sunday; warmer Sunday; brisk northeasterly winds, becoming easterly.

FOR BOSTON AND VICINITY.

BOSTON, May 8, 8 A. M. For Boston and vicinity—Fair tonight and Sunday; warmer; north to east winds.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

There is very little to say about the weather today, as the conditions continue almost five over the country. Clear skies are the predominating feature in all sections east of the Mississippi river. Cloudiness prevails in the valley regions of the West, but at the moment of observation rain was falling, except at Kansas City. The area of high barometer has moved eastward. Its centre over the New York state this morning, with a maximum reading of 30.40, at Rochester. The result of this is continued low temperatures for the reason in eastern sections.
At Norfolk, Va., the mercury fell to 24 last night, and a killing frost is reported. Light frosts are also generally reported in the eastern lake region, and it is probable that such recorded in the interior of southern New England.
The weather will again be cold tonight.

FOR THE PARIS DEAD.

Requiem Mass Celebrated with Especial Solemnity.

PARIS, May 6.—A requiem mass for the repose of the souls of the victims of the fire at the charity bazaar Tuesday last was celebrated with extreme solemnity at noon today in the Cathedral of Notre Dame. The interior of the building was heavily draped with black, relieved by silver embroideries, and the main doorway was draped with a huge pall spangled with silver edged with ermine, and raised on either side by silver loops. Above the doors were escutcheons with the initials "R. F." (Republique Française).

At an early hour the square in front of the cathedral was densely packed with people. An imposing catafalque, covered with flowers and erected in front of the choir, contained the remains of the Comtesse de Falloux and Madame Julian. Conspicuous among the floral tributes were magnificent wreaths sent by the Emperor and Empress of Germany and the Russian colony of Paris. President Faure occupied a raised platform on the left of the choir, and behind him were ranged the families of the victims, the members of the government, the diplomatic corps and other notabilities.

Mgr. De Lessaulx officiated at the mass and Father Oliver preached the sermon, taking for his text the words: "Blessed are they who have passed from life doing good." A majority of the large stores of Paris were closed during the service at Notre Dame.

COSTS TOO MUCH.

Appropriation for the State Census Will Probably Be Reduced.

There is trouble in store for the census commission, and the amount desired for the completion of the work, $7,000, will probably not be granted by the house of representatives. The committee on finance recommended a cut to $4,800 yesterday, and submitted an elaborate statement in support of the action.

The statement was intended to relieve the committee on finance of all responsibility for the amounts appropriated for the completion of the census work on its recommendation. The statement threw the blame on the shoulders of the commissioner of industrial statistics, the committee declaring that all appropriations had been made from information gained from his statements, and made without reluctance until that of May 25, 1896.

The committee says it was assured that the $10,000 then asked for would complete the work, this sum making a total of $50,000 appropriated. Against this sum stands the $30,000 expended for the census of 1885, and the committee thought the last appropriation was ample to complete the present work, even after making allowances for the increase in population. The request for $10,000 additional, and the granting of $2,500 during the January session in order that the work might not stop, was referred to.

The statement says that the commissioner of industrial statistics has failed to include in the last sum asked for the cost of the printing of the books, some $4,000 additional, and concludes: "Your honorable body will observe that under the statute your committee is powerless to determine the amount of expenditure that shall be made in the taking of the state census. Hence, and in view of the foregoing, and in order that justice be done to your honorable body, as well as to your committee, this statement is made."—(Providence Journal.)

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Mr. Job Teff has the contract to paint the interior of St. Matthew's Church. The painting and ornamentation is to be entirely different from that at present; the windows will be bordered in imitation of tiles, and there will be a gilt border around the sides of the audience room; the chancel will be in a different color from the audience room, and the combination of colors are expected to have a pleasing effect.

Mr. Daniel Watson has rented for Mr. P. H. Horgan his south cottage, situated on Walcott avenue, between Lincoln and Friendship streets, to Dr. J. E. McMichael of New York for the coming season.

Mr. F. C. Cunningham and family of New York, have taken rooms for the season at the Bay View Hotel.

The streets in the village were lighted for the first time this season Thursday evening, and by vote of the town meeting are to be lighted throughout the year. The tax assessors are busily engaged at their duty of assessing the citizens of the town an annual tax upon their properties, at a fair and impartial valuation. It is understood that in many cases the valuation has been increased over that of previous years. In spite of the efforts to assess all at their true value there will be as usual, without doubt, about the usual number of dissatisfied property owners, and the poor assessors will have to hear unpleasant accusations of being partial or incompetent to properly fill the position.

A STRANGER IN NEW YORK.

The first presentation in this city of Charles H. Hoyt's latest play, "A Stranger in New York," will be given at the Opera House next Tuesday evening. Like most of the productions of this talented playwright, plot plays a small part in "A Stranger in New York." There is, however, said to be plot enough to sustain the interest, and even more of a plot than was found in his famous "A Trip to Chinatown." Singing, dancing and specialties, that are said to be a levy of pretty girls, elaborate costumes, handsome scenery, a strong cast, headed by Harry Conner and Marie Jansen, funny scenes and situations and bright, crisp, witty dialogue are the principal features that go to make an entertainment which is claimed to be the most amusing that Mr. Hoyt has yet offered to the public. All the songs in the piece are new, with music composed by Richard Stahl and words by Mr. Hoyt. There are a number of topical songs, that are bound to make pronounced hits, notably, "When Someone Falls the String," "Lou and Sue," "The Arion Ball," "The Bowery Ain't What It Used to Be." The last-named will be sung by Harry Conner, who made "On the Bowery" famous, having rendered that song more than 3,800 times.

The A. B. C. Pathfinder Railway Guide, the oldest in America, appears this month in a new dress of type, with day trains indicated by light-faced figures and night trains by dark; a new gazetteer of New England, and other improvements, which make the little book better than ever.

CASES AT COURT.

Entries on the Docket of the Appellate Division.

The appellate division of the supreme court for Newport county will meet in this city Monday morning, to hear arguments. The docket contains the usual assortment of old cases that promise to draw their slow length along as in the past, being now headed by No. 1, P. J. Murphy vs. Joseph Haire, with No. 2, Benjamin Plech vs. William S. Bailey, a close second. The Langley estate is mentioned several times, opening with the equity case of Maria B. Langley vs. John S. Langley, followed by J. S. Langley and others against S. R. Honey and wife. Then come five cases of S. R. Honey against C. B. Reynolds & Co. Another celebrated legal tangle, that over the Newport Laundry Company, cases in which two of the principals are now dead, has several entries.

In the equity division is that of Catherine Galvin and others vs. Edward Newton, two cases, and Catherine Galvin, executrix, vs. P. H. Horgan and others. Under "New Trials" is National Exchange Bank vs. Catherine Galvin, executrix, and under "Demurrers," Island Savings Bank vs. Catherine Galvin, executrix.

Jamestown furnishes two cases, that of G. H. Kelley and wife against Dorcas E. Collins, and State vs. Daniel Howland, the latter du demurrer. The Block Island case, H. A. Sheffield vs. S. M. Rose and others, comes up in equity, as do two Tiverton cases, J. A. Wilcox vs. G. L. Wilcox, and A. P. White vs. G. L. Wilcox.

The disagreement over the Franklin bakery business is represented by two cases, R. S. Franklin vs. W. B. Franklin, in equity, with the same entry under the head of "Jury Trial Waived." The J. D. Horgan estate has one entry, Mary Z. Dillon vs. P. H. Burke, and the Tilley estate, once settled, is re-opened, and appears under the old heading, George W. T. Tilley and others vs. G. T. Seabury. The Chase estate in Middletown also calls forth two entries, both Sarah G. Chase and others vs. Alfred W. Chase and others. The matter of managing Commercial wharf again appears under the title of W. F. Lennon vs. Samuel R. Honey and others. State vs. Thomas Welsman, for selling without a license, and State vs. James Shea, for murder, are under the "New Trials" heading. The appeal in the Shea case will probably be heard, as the new evidence is filed. The city, through its tax assessors, is represented in two cases brought by the Newport Illuminating Company, and Charles Ritt participates in two cases, one against P. H. Horgan and one against W. R. Dodge, growing out of a plumber shop.

Two insolvency cases against William Carry and James I. Bowler will be considered.

The divorce cases number twenty-two. Some have been long on the docket, while the following are new: Hannah F. Guenther vs. Charles E. Guenther, Elfreda Nelson vs. Adolf F. Nelson, Minnie Hudson vs. Edgar Hudson, Emily G. Mason vs. Harry S. Mason, Julia Bryer vs. B. J. Bryer, Carrie F. Freeborne vs. W. A. Freeborne, John L. Hatch vs. Josephine P. Hatch, Annie H. Gorton vs. William K. Gorton, W. S. Woodworth vs. Rosa M. Woodworth, Charles J. Riegl vs. Catherine M. Riegl, James A. Stringer vs. Lillian M. Stringer, and Ayis J. Cobb vs. Theodore S. Cobb.

THE CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH CHOR.

Mrs. W. O. Pray has been engaged as soprano at the Central Baptist Church in place of Mrs. G. A. Brown, who has resigned on account of throat trouble. Mrs. Pray is known in Newport as a singer of much ability and taste. The musical service for tomorrow will be as follows:

Morning—Prædium No. 2 for organ, Mendelssohn; anthem, Hark, Hark My Soul, solo by Mrs. Black; Gloria Patri, S. P. Warren; Response, Kyrie, Beethoven; Offertory, anthem, aria from "St. Paul," Mendelssohn, "I will Sing of thy Great Mercies," Mrs. Pray; "Great Redeemer, Friend of Sinners," Gluck; organ postlude, Prelude and Fugue in D minor, J. S. Bach.

Evening—Organ prelude, Andante from the symphony in C minor, L. von Beethoven; anthems, "Love Divine," Stainer; "O Saviour, Guide us Still," Sir John Goss; Gloria Tibi, Garrett; organ postlude, Psalm No. 111 Ciel Immense, Marcello.

NEWPORT WHIST PLAYERS IN BOSTON.

Messrs. James S. Peckham and Herbert L. Dyer of Newport, who are participating in the play of the New England whist congress, now in session in Boston, stood well in the contest for club pairs Friday afternoon. In the east and west section the average was 507 tricks, and the Newport players made 210, which enabled them to hold fourth place. The highest score of the section was 215, made by Hawkes and C. F. Snow of the American Whist Club of Boston. The hands of the east and west section were much shorter than those of the first section, in which the average was 251 tricks, and the standing of Messrs. Peckham and Dyer, only four tricks behind the leaders in their section, is therefore all the more creditable.

Fancy-Dress Balls to Rival the Bradley Martins.

Bladstone's Little Granddaughter Received by the Queen.

[Copyrighted by the Associated Press.] LONDON, May 8.—Cold weather still prevails in most parts of England, and Wednesday last there was frost in London. Although the town is full and the summer clubs, like the Hurlingham and Ranelagh, are open, outdoor games hang fire. The ladies are still wearing their furs and overcoats are quite comfortable.

Society is already on the verge of anticipation of the five fancy-dress balls to be given by prominent hostesses, which promise a commotion approaching the Bradley-Martin ball. They are all to be representations of different periods of history, and will entail great expense. A feature of the Duchess of Devonshire's will be an Oriental quadrille, with Lady De Grey as Cleopatra and Lady Dudley in a Byzantine costume. Mrs. Arthur Paget and Miss Muriel Wilson will give the second ball at Holland House. The guests will appear in the costumes of their ancestors as painted by Gainsborough and Reynolds. Lady Naylor-Landau, formerly Miss Jane Chamberlain of Cleveland, Ohio, will also give a costume ball.

The queen did a graceful thing Thursday and delighted Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone by summing their granddaughter, Dorothy Drew, to Windsor Castle. Her Majesty was anxious to see the child who has figured so prominently in Mr. Gladstone's domestic life. Dorothy left Harwarden Wednesday, accompanied by her mother, and from there left for Windsor. On arriving at Windsor they were met by Colonel the Hon. William H. P. Carlington; one of the equerries in ordinary, with a royal carriage, to take them to the castle. Dorothy wore an olive green costume. After luncheon with the queen, Miss Drew returned to town.

The Prince and Princess of Wales and Princess Maud of Wales (Princess Charles of Denmark) are spending Sunday with the Duke of Westminster at Eaton Hall, Chester, where a large party has been gathered to meet them. Monday the Prince and Princess of Wales will drive to Harwarden and lunch with Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone. Each member of the royal family will plant a tree at Harwarden as a memorial of the occasion.

Endless Appeals to Charity The appeals to the charity of the Londoners are endless, and are generally answered generously. The Mansion House Indian famine fund has now nearly reached the sum of £32,000 (£240,000), or £5,000 (£25,000) more than was raised during the whole continuance of the last famine. Every class has contributed. The children of London board schools have given £1,500 (£7,500). It is understood that the efforts to raise the money for the relief of the Indian sufferers will in no way be relaxed, as the famine will be severely felt throughout the year. The Daily Chronicle within a week has raised nearly £70,000 for the Greek wounded. The Prince of Wales hospital fund alone hangs fire. The yearly deficit of the London hospitals is over £100,000 (£300,000), and the prince hoped to raise £3,000,000 (£15,000,000). It is doubtful if even £500,000 (£3,500,000) will be obtained; but the Prince of Wales will personally address the meeting of bankers and other prominent people in the city, and appeal for more money for the hospital fund.

Waldorf Astor's Tea. Mr. William Waldorf Astor gave a tea Tuesday in his office building on the Thames embankment, the inside of which has just been completed. The United States ambassador, Colonel John Hay, Mrs. Hay, the Duchess of Cleveland, the Duchess of St. Albans, the Duchess of Buckingham, Lady Wolsey, Lady Vernon Harcourt, Viscount Peel, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin, Colonel Ralph Vivian, Mrs. Vivian, Lord Ivill and a host of others were present. One of the features of the building is the staircase leading to the second floor. Mr. Astor was showing this with great gusto to the Duchess of Cleveland, when she said: "Yes, it is far finer than mine at Little Abbey (Sussex), where the steps are spilt by the marks left by knights' spurs."

In the Theatres. The past week has been uneventful for the theatrical world. The revival of "The Yeoman of the Guard" at the Savoy Theatre Wednesday was successful, and will run the season, though the cast compares unfavorably with that of the original production. Gilbert and Sullivan received an ovation. The cold weather has been unfavorable to the attendance at the theatres. M. Yandeyk will sing three times in the first week of grand opera, in "Faust," Monday, "Lobengrin," Thursday and "Manon" Saturday. Mme. Francis Saville will also appear in "Manon." Miss Macintyre, who has been in Moscow, has arrived in London in time to appear the following week. Wilson Barrett brought out his revival of "Virginius" at the Lyric Theatre last Monday. He has made several changes in the original work of Sheridan Knowles, thereby causing some comment in the press that a work amounting to a classic should be emaciated. During her London engagement in Madame Sans Gene, "La Douceur" and "Francillon," in which latter comedy she has not yet appeared in Paris, its rights there being owned by the Comedie Francaise.

The Immigration Problem in the Transvaal. Great importance is attached to the decision of the Transvaal Volksraad at a secret session held at Pretoria, the capital, Wednesday last, to repeal the Transvaal immigration law. The meeting was held to discuss the answer to the despatches of the British secretary of state for the colonies, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, who demanded a repeal of the law. The law was repealed: but it is suspected that this step was taken not because the measure was a breach of the London convention, but because it was distasteful to neighboring states. The Transvaal state representative tendered

A CHAPTER OF SECRET HISTORY.

How We Got the French Out of Mexico.

Historical writers have usually assumed that the United States hastened, if it did not cause, the departure of Louis Napoleon's troops from Mexico by sending General Sheridan to the Rio Grande with fifty thousand troops. Lieutenant General John M. Schofield contributes to the May Century a "Chapter of Secret History," in which he tells of pressure brought to bear upon the emperor in another way which, so far as we influenced his action at all, was probably more effective than the demonstration on the Mexican frontier. This chapter of history, told in a very simple and modest way by General Schofield, is of value as exhibiting the triumph of peaceful means in adjusting an international difference grave enough to have been the cause of serious preparations for warlike action on our part; also as a story of our fortunate escape from a great blunder to which we were at one time committed.

The French emperor's invasion of Mexico was to us unfriendly and perilous. Setting out in company with England and Spain ostensibly to collect just debts from Mexico, he very soon made it clear that his real purpose was to set up by French bayonets a Latin empire in place of the republics. England and Spain withdrew from the enterprise, and although he and his ministers gave lying answers to Secretary Seward's demands for an explanation of his intentions, the placing of Maximilian on the Mexican throne in the summer of 1863 left us no longer in doubt. We continued to recognize the government of Juarez as the only legitimate government of the Mexican people, and Secretary Seward repeatedly informed Louis Napoleon's ministers that we should regard his attempts to force an empire on the Mexicans as an act unfriendly to us.

But we were in the midst of the war of rebellion. Our remonstrances were confined to our diplomatic correspondence. When the war was over General Sheridan was sent with 50,000 men to the Rio Grande as a demonstration of our intention to back up our diplomatic protests. But it was at once evident that this army was not available for actual hostilities. The men had enlisted only for the civil war, which was ended. Then, as General Schofield states, it was proposed that a new army should be enlisted and officered under the authority and command of the Mexican government of Juarez. We were to furnish the men—it was well understood that both Federal and Confederate soldiers would enlist—and the munitions of war, and a Mexican loan was to be negotiated in this country to pay the cost of expelling the puppet emperor and his French army. But we were to be very careful not to offend France or to get into a war with her ourselves.

General Grant asked General Schofield to look the control and direction of this plan. President Johnson, Secretary Stanton and even Secretary Seward approved it. On the 25th day of July General Grant wrote to General Sheridan a letter of instructions designed to secure his full cooperation with General Schofield. He tells him that General Schofield is going to the Rio Grande on a "tour of inspection," with authority to leave the United States; that he is resolved to maintain the Monroe doctrine in relation to Mexico; that "we want to rid the Mexicans without giving cause of war between the United States and France," and he gives these specific directions:

"On the Rio Grande, or in Texas, convenient to get there, we must have a large amount of surrendered ordnance and ordnance stores, or such articles accumulating from discharging men who leave their stores behind. Without special orders to do so send none of these articles back, but rather place them convenient to be permitted to go into Mexico if they can be got into the hands of the defenders of the only government we recognize in that country. I hope General Schofield may go with orders direct to receive these articles, but if he does not I know it will meet with general approbation to let him have them if contrary orders are not received."

"That is the most un-Grant-like letter ever published under the signature of General Grant. Its shifty evasiveness as to the real matter in hand is unnatural to a man of Grant's straightforward methods. We cannot believe that at heart he approved this preposterous plan. General Schofield makes no comments but he does not conceal his pleasure in recording the abandonment of this disreputable design for one more worthy of our standing as a nation. Indeed it is amazing that this plan of surely getting into a war with France while trying to avoid one, and trying by means so transparent as to be futile and so subterranean as to be unworthy, should have received anybody's approval. If we were really and in fact to make war on the troops of the emperor of the French, it ought to have been under our own flag."

The good sense of William H. Seward saved the country from that insupportable blunder. He sent General Schofield to Paris with instructions to "get the legs under Napoleon's machinery and tell him he must get out of Mexico." The change of plan was approved by the President and the War Department, and General Schofield expresses his devout thankfulness that this resort was had to peaceful means.

General Schofield arrived in Paris on December 2, 1865. There were rumors that his mission was somewhat hostile to the interests of France, but he tactfully allayed the excitement to which they gave rise by proposing at the American Thanksgiving dinner "the old friendship between France and the United States, may it be strengthened and perpetuated." He was not an accredited envoy. He was expected to use social means only; and Minister Bigelow was instructed to "aid him. In several interviews with Prince Napoleon—who was not in political accord with the emperor—and with officers of high rank he made known frankly the views of the government of the people of the United States. It was understood that nothing said by him would be "withheld from the emperor." He did not seek a personal audience. It was unnecessary, and would have been a mistake. At a Tuilleries ball the emperor and empress showed him courteous attention. Finally, at the opening of the Corps Legislatif, on January 22, 1866, the emperor in his address declared that the Mexican expedition "was raised by me in the name of the American people, and that the American people, through me, had given it their sanction." The evening General Schofield dined with Prince Napoleon at the Palais Royal. There was much free talking, and at length the prince asked General Schofield pointblank if, in his opinion, "the emperor's declaration would be satisfactory to the United States." The general replied that he believed it would be "entirely satisfactory." To prove that this was a most indiscreet answer, which might have thwarted the whole purpose of his mission, it is only necessary to quote the general's statement in a letter to General Grant, written on the 24th, that "we cannot forget the fact that in his speech last year he (the emperor) used quite as strong language about the termination of his Mexican expedition."

A little more than two months later, however, on April 5, the official announcement of the evacuation of Mexico was made. We may with reason hold to the belief that our protests and the influence of General Schofield materially assisted the emperor in making up his mind. But the Mexican expedition was unpopular in France, and the emperor foresaw that he could not permanently keep an army in Mexico, and that without one Maximilian would fall. He might have withdrawn his troops without pressure from us. But we were in an immensely better position for having applied it. It is now universally admitted that we took no needful steps to maintain the principles of the Monroe doctrine, and General Schofield's narrative shows to the world that we went about the matter in a common-sense way. It was a triumph of the art of getting what you want, not by fighting for it, but by peaceful methods.—[New York Times.

MEN AND PROCESSIONS.

Man, as a species, loves a procession. It is the one love, in fact, that sets him apart from the rest of the vertebrates. In his primitive condition it belonged to him. Civilization has only fostered it. Both sacred and profane history give evidence of this. And records of contemporary life the world over prove the truth of it every day.

It is four years now since this love has been gratified among us, since the last of our great processions, blocked and massed of people filled the doorways and windows of houses for miles, or stood all day on the pavement to watch the "troops" file by. Neither fatigue nor hunger spoiled them at the time; nor did the memory of anything suffered dampen the ardor of their response when a new procession was announced for the day of the dedication of General Grant's tomb. From every part of the country, in fact, men and women came, and for weeks, as we all know, preparations were everywhere being made. But when the day arrived one saw again, what one always sees on occasions like it, that a procession or parade, after all, or any great function, is very much like everything else in life—the interest it inspires depending upon that which each individual has in himself to bring to its enjoyment.

The patriot is stirred by such a one as we witnessed the other day. He enters the sight of the great files being colored, and ceases to thrill with its meaning. But the small boy sees only the glitter and glow of that which passes before him. The young woman taking a

ARMY PRIZES.

Major General and Brigadier General Soon to be Appointed.

Major General Frank R. Wheaton, commanding the Department of the Colorado, at Denver, retires for age today. The President now has the bestowal of two rich army prizes—a major generalship and a brigadier generalship. For the higher office mentioned in the order of seniority they are General John R. Brooke, commanding the Department of Missouri, at Chicago; General E. S. Otis, commanding the Department of the Columbia, at Vancouver; General James W. Forsyth, commanding the Department of California, at San Francisco; General Z. R. Bliss, commanding the Department of Texas, at San Antonio; General J. J. Coppinger, commanding the Department of the Platte, at Omaha; and General W. R. Shafter, just promoted, who is unassigned.

All the indications point to the promotion of General Brooke, who is the senior in rank. At the last vacancy in the list of major generals, caused by the retirement of General Ruger early in April, General Wheaton was jumped over General Brooke, in order to enable the former to retire with the higher rank. It was then supposed that General Brooke's advancement was only deferred for the time being, and that he would receive the major generalship on the retirement of General Wheaton.

Although there is no knowledge of any change in this program, the friends of General Forsyth and General Bliss are evidently encouraged to believe that there is a possibility of the selection of one of the two over General Brooke, and they are working accordingly. It is claimed for both of these officers that their cases are similar to that of General Wheaton, and should be treated the same. This means that they will both retire before General Brooke, and that they can both be promoted in turn without depriving him of the chance of reaching the higher grade. On the other hand, if he is now chosen, their only chance of promotion would lie in his death.

General Forsyth entered the army in 1851, and will retire in 1898. General Bliss holds the record for continuous service in the army. He entered in 1853, and will retire in 1899. General Brooke will retire in 1902. General Otis, the second brigadier in seniority, will also retire in 1902. The major generalship will go to one of the four officers named, with the chances strongly in favor of General Brooke.

These prospective changes will involve a slight shifting of commands. General Brooke will remain in command of the Department of Missouri, whether he is promoted or not.

General Wesley Merritt, commanding the Department of the East, at New York, has abandoned his contemplated trip to the seat of war in the East, and will continue in his present command.

General Otis will take command of the Department of the Colorado vice General Wheaton, retired, and General Shafter, the junior brigadier, will succeed him in command of the Department of the Columbia.

The command of the Department of Dakota, at St. Paul, which has been vacant since General Brooke's transfer to Chicago, will be filled by Colonel Nitzsche, the senior colonel of the department until the appointment of a new brigadier general. Twenty-seven candidates for Brigadier General.

The appointment of a major general will leave a vacancy in the list of brigadier generals, to be filled by promotion from the large list of colonels of the line. The contest for this appointment is much fiercer than that for the higher office. There are twenty-six active candidates for the prospective vacancy, and many passive ones, hoping that their modesty may possibly secure them the prize on the theory of the office seeking the man.

The three senior colonels are Merritt and Anderson in the Infantry and Wade of the Cavalry, but their seniority does not insure their preferment. The rule of seniority was observed in the case of General Wheaton, and is expected to be followed in the selection of General Brooke as major general. If adhered to in the matter of the new brigadier, it will mean the promotion of Colonel Merritt.

For some unexplained reason, however, the impression prevails that there may be a departure from the rule in making the new brigadier general. At any rate, all the candidates are making a vigorous fight. The friends of Colonel Atter and Colonel Frank are bringing the strongest kind of political and social influence to bear upon the President and the Secretary of War in behalf of these officers. Colonel Frank is the leading candidate in the artillery, and in advocacy of his cause it is argued that it has been many years since a general officer was selected from that branch of the service, and that as a deserving officer is now available for selection that arm of the service should be honored in preference to either the Infantry or the Cavalry.

It is expected that these two appointments will be made early next week, and the forthcoming nominations will be awaited with great interest by the service people.

Regardless of the individual selections for major general and brigadier general, promotions will be made all along the line from colonel down to second lieutenants. With the exception of the lowest grade, all the vacancies will be filled by seniority.

The second lieutenant will be filled by promotion from the ranks.

AMERICAN COMPETITION IN THE BRITISH IRON MARKET.

American competition has set the English iron men to thinking harder than they ever did before, and the conditions under which their industry is carried on are receiving careful study in the hope of discovering what remediable disadvantages, if any, have had a part in opening to foreigners the home markets where not long ago the British manufacturers did not even dream of rivals. In the course of this investigation it has been disclosed that both in the United States and on the Continent railways make to large shippers concessions which are strictly prohibited under the English law, and the consequence is that imported goods reach England after paying rates no greater, and sometimes less, than the English manufacturer pays for his transportation of similar goods from his shop to points of distribution only fifty or a hundred miles away. This is due to a jealous regard for the retail dealer's interest. In America and Germany merchandise is carted to the points of sale at rates as compared with small shipments. No such marked discrimination exists in England, for a single trader's consignment to the railway commission would upset it in a moment. The railway company would have to justify the preference of A, sending six tons, over B, sending only four. Now practically the only justification for a difference of rate between two loads of iron is to which an English law court will listen is a corresponding difference in the cost to the railway company of performing the service. And, needless to say, no such corresponding difference of cost exists as between the English manufacturer and the foreigner.

Diabetes.

Dr. J. Seegen, Professor of Medicine at the University of Vienna,

In his celebrated work on diabetes mellitus says: "Of all remedies in my large experience with this disease, and the many experiments which I, as well as such prominent men as Angle, Fleckles, Hlawezek and others, have made, Carlsbad Water and the Carlsbad Sprudel Salt deserves to be placed in the first rank."

"All of the above writers agree with me that the use of the Carlsbad Water exerts a very beneficial influence in diabetes. I have, in the course of many years treated a very large number of patients suffering with the disease, and have, with great interest, noticed the effect of Carlsbad Water in reducing the amount of sugar. My invariable experience has been that almost without an exception an improvement was marked and noticeable during and after the use of the same, even where no strict diet was observed." Eisner & Mendelson Co., sole agents for the genuine imported Carlsbad Mineral Water, New York.

Four-ton and six-ton consignments. Even so far as it does exist, it can scarcely be proved by legal evidence. The result is aptly expressed by the fact that an English railway company cannot reduce wholesale rates without reducing also its retail rates, and its retail rates no company, English or foreign, is likely to reduce except under compulsion stronger than any one class in the community can hope to exert. All this brings out the fact that American laws in this as in many other instances, are more favorable to those of England to the big corporations; but it also shows that such favor is not necessarily an injury to the public.—New York Times.

For a small can of Dirt Killer, the servant girl would be more cheerful; your wife would say, bless your dear old heart, Obarley, you are always so thoughtful. Dirt Killer kills dust, it prevents it rising from the floor when sweeping, it simply goes ahead of the broom or brush. All dust that falls to the floor stays there until swept up. Use it on your oilcloth, kitchen floors, store floors and on your floors under carpets and matting—it kills and destroys moths, bugs and vermin of all kinds. Applied to much used floors once in three months it will save you lots of work and care. For sale at 69 Mill street at 60 cents per quart. Today's Games.

Pawtucket at Newport, Brockton at Fall River, New Bedford at Taunton.

Newport, 11; Pawtucket, 0.

The Newporters made their debut yesterday before a Pawtucket audience, and, much to the sorrow of the rooters walked away with a game which for five innings looked like a sure thing for the home team. During that length of time the contest was a well played and snappy exhibition by both teams. Both pitchers handling the sphere in championship form and receiving good support except in the first inning, when the visitors made a couple of errors, which resulted in a run. Horner was on the rubber for the Maroons, and shot them over the plate in great style, Grant and Nugent being the only two who could connect for safe hits. The Pawtucket twirler also made himself solid by catching both men napping so far off the base that they were unable to get back before the ball. During these first five innings but two men reached second and one of these had scarcely been there a minute when Hobe Whiting ran up behind him, took the throw from Horner and retired the side.

All this time the cranks were admiring Horner's work, and figuring on another victory, when, presto, things changed. Horner went in the air, the fielders caught the fever, and in a twinkling the visitors jumped to the front, never to be headed to the finish.

When they once got started the ponies showed that they knew a thing or two about hitting, and they straightened the Pawtucket man's curves straighter than a string, a single, four doubles and two home runs constituting their work during the last three innings.

When they found the game slipping through their fingers, the home players made a desperate rally, but were unable to pull it out of the fire, although they fell upon Hawley's curves with a determination worthy of success. Although pounded hard and often during the last three innings, the Newporter kept his head and made a creditable finish by making Buclow fan the air when Wise was on third anxiously waiting to be sent across the rubber.

Crisman was the star performer with the willow, getting a single and two home runs out of the last three times at bat. The work by Wise, although including no home run, was as creditable as that of the Newporter man, as he made two three-baggers that would have been good for four bases on an open field. Captain Stouch was not far behind when it came to putting them out, as he succeeded in hitting safely three times, including two doubles and a single.

Dinsmore's capture of a steaming hot liner from Whiting's bat and the double play which he assisted in on getting on his feet after the catch, was the fielding feature of the game.

Umpire Connelly was in charge of the contest and there was quite a kick in the sixth inning, owing to his ruling on a ball hit by Gallagher, which went over first base while the bag was out of position. Connelly ruled that it was his duty to judge the hit fair if it went over the base, while Horner protested on the ground that the ball should strike on fair ground and that the position of the base had nothing to do with whether the ball was fair. The hit was a two-bagger and cut quite a figure in the final result of the game.

New Bedford, 4; Taunton, 2. The Tauntons kept the New Bedford team hustling for twelve innings before they could win the game. Day and Callahan were pitted against each other, and their work was admirable. During the last five innings just fifteen men and no more faced Day. Both pitchers received excellent support, although one of New Bedford's errors was costly. Davis won the game in the twelfth by a home run over the left field fence after Tighe had been hit by a pitched ball and two were out. Davis came within a foot of getting a home run in the tenth, the ball hitting the left field fence about a foot from the top. Herwig caught it off the fence and caught the runner between second and third. Umpire Delano had a hard time with the players, who found him lenient in discipline, and there was considerable wrangling.

Brockton, 6; Fall River, 1.

Brockton won in an exciting uphill contest with Fall River, by timely hitting. Fall River batted Hall hard for four innings, but could not hit Wich. Sheekard, Henry and Shea of Brockton and Ladd, Kelly and Reilly of Fall River did pretty work. Umpire Hunt had several close decisions, and without exception gave them against the home team.

ford, was scheduled for today, but New Bedford cancelled. The game yesterday between the Evening Stars and the Navigators ended in a tie, at 13. Heffernan and Byrnes were the battery for the Stars, and Cleary and Giff for the Navigators. When Sullivan umpired at Fort Adams the soldiers complained of his work, and the next day put in a soldier to umpire the game with his club, the Volunteers. The new umpire did not do a thing to the Volunteers, and the fort men said they were simply evening up. At the time it was thought the soldiers were unreasonable, but after yesterday's game it must be acknowledged that they had cause for their action. The latest addition to the list of base ball enthusiasts is a newspaper man, who before this could not be induced to go to the grounds. Now he is rooting for the home team and advising his younger confreres to be lenient with the men, as he feels sure they are doing their best and should be encouraged.

THE BEACON.

When the Beacon was first opened only one service a week was held, and that on Monday evening, when there were no regular church services. Later the use of the room was offered to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, which began a service on Saturday evenings, which is still continued by it. About two years ago the way was opened for a third weekly service, on Tuesday evenings. Many times a desire has been expressed by some of the members of the Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union, who have this work in charge, that there might be a service regularly on Sunday, but the time has never seemed ripe for it until two weeks ago, when a service was held at 1 o'clock. This will now be continued as long as there is the present demand for it. There are only a few churches which have a service of any kind in the afternoon, and these are all closed at about that hour, and there are numbers of people to be seen upon the streets with nothing to do and nowhere to go except to places which have a degrading influence. It is hoped by this service to place the opposite influence within the reach of many, and yet in no way to detract from the attendance at the churches.

AN IMPROVED STORAGE BATTERY.

The system of accumulators designed for street railway use by Herr Paul Ribbe of Berlin has for its essential feature carrying plates of celluloid enclosing the lead plates, and provided with a number of openings, the edges of which form the supports for the active material in the form of a special paste. This form of construction is claimed to ensure great durability in spite of great variations of load. A street-car battery on this system consists of 140 cells, having a total weight of about 2 1/2 tons, and supplying an equivalent of 40 horse-power for a run of twenty hours without recharging. It will take a long time for New York to adapt itself to the annexation so far as to refrain from making fun of Brooklyn.—Washington Star.
